*Three years ago the normal period of residence for undergraduates was changed from three to four years. The effect of this was to make the present year an interregnum. Students who entered the University in October, 1906, were, for the most part, graduated in 1909; those who entered in 1907 will be, for the most part, graduated in 1911. Hence the small number receiving the bachelor's degree this year.
